

The outstanding management and staff of Sally's Residential Care Home in Camarillo understands that a facility for assisted living in Southern California needs to be many things. It should provide the best round-the-clock services possible from a highly trained and experienced staff who are familiar with the special issues that confront seniors.

Assisted living facilities

like ours also need to provide a level of physical support simply to help seniors with such basic functions as nutrition and proper hygiene.

At the exact same time, the entire staff and management of Sally's Residential Care Home understands that providing for all the emotional, psychological, and spiritual needs of residents is a crucial element of assisted living in Southern California or anywhere else. In fact, in at least one respect, Southern California assisted living presents a series of unique challenges when it comes to the sprawling geography of the region. Close relatives who live in Southern California may still live a considerable distance away from the facility and may not be able to visit as often as they would like. While that reality may place an additional burden in terms of providing emotional support on providers of Southern California senior care

, Sally's Residential Care Home is more than up to the challenge.

We place a great deal of emphasis on services that make life more enjoyable and diverting, as well as healthier, for our clientele. Music and pet therapy, daily walks, arts and crafts, religious services, pet therapy, as well as bingo and movie nights are just a few of the many ways Sally's Residential Care Home makes the happiness of its residents its first priority.

There's a good reason that Sally's Residential Care Home is the facility for assisted living Southern California believes in. To find out more, please give us a call today at 1-805-701-1246 or visit our contact page