

As a leader in Southern California senior care, Sally's Residential Care Home boasts an enormous level of compassion and commitment to providing the best possible level of care. Our residents are the heart of what we do; the kind words we have received from grateful relatives about the improvements we've been able to achieve in the quality of their lives have been extremely heartwarming.

Achieving the level of outstanding services in assisted living Southern California families demand is not always easy, but it is also the least we can do. As a first rate Southern California senior care facility, we provide the kind of services that go well beyond caring for the basic needs of our residents. For example, while providing proper nutrition is obviously one important aspect of caring for our guests, we know that making sure the food tastes good is also important to our guests' psychological wellbeing. Moreover, nutritious food is only good when people will actually eat it!

That's only the beginning. While any Southern California assisted living facility worth its salt will have a range of activities available for residents to keep them aware and socially active, Sally's Residential Care Home believe that providing a large range of these activities is absolutely essential. Both assisted living and nursing homes in Southern California provide these kinds of services, but we believe it is crucial to make those services absolutely central to our work. Keeping seniors healthy and happy is, after all, at very core of what Sally's Residential Care Home does.

For more information on outstanding Southern California senior care services or to set up a visit, you may visit our contact page or reach us via phone at 1-805-701-1246.